MUSICAL MATTERS.

The charity concert at the Music Hall on Saturday afternoon afforded proof that it is not impossible, though difficult, to overestimate the popularity of Mr. Paderewski. The belief that a combination of the legitimate desire to hear him-which is still strong-and willingness to help along several lovely chartties, led the managers to double the prices of admission. The effect was to give the great planist the smallest audience that he has played to in New-York this season. The difficulty had been forescen week in advance, and the generosity of Steinway Sons enabled the management to extricate themelves creditably. The firm, having already assumed all the expenses of the concert, holdly changed the character of the projected entertainment from a solo recital to a concert with orchestra. The result was, of course, greatly to stimulate the interest of the musical portion of the community, and make the affair most delightful, artistically, of the season. Mr. Paderewski played his own concerts under the direction of Mr. Damrosch, Liszt's Hungarian Fantasla under the direction of Mr. Arthur Friedheim, and a set of Chopin pieces as is his wont. The beauties of his concerts were made more manifest then at his first concert last season, when the accompaniment hung upon his own playing like a clog. the Fantasia the co-operation of the two virtuworked up several excusing climaxes. It was Mr. Priedheim's first appearance in New-York as a conductor, and he disclosed an ability to command his forces which is deserving of hearty praise. It was plain that he is not a novice. Mr. Paderewski's popular success was achieved in Chopin's A-flat Pelensise. The octave passage for the left hand, rising from a mere rhythmical flutter to a furious tornado of sound, fairly whirled his hearers off their feet. He will give another recital in New-York, and sall for England on May 6.

Signor Campanini's annual concert in the Lenox Lyceum last night was one of those musical monstrosities which defy serious consideration, and are chiefly interesting as an evidence of the extent to which the amiability of performers and public may stretched. The veteran tenor has a host of friends, who took as much pleasure in showing their admiration for him as he did in singing to them. There were artists and music enough for two or three concerts of reasonable dimensions.

The criticisms of Berlin writers show that two American artists who gave concerts in the Prussian capital about a month ago made favorable impressions upon the public. They were George Magrath, of this city and afterward of Cincinnati, and Richard Burmeister. Their concerts took place in the Singakademie. Mr. Magrath played Hummel's concerto in A-minor, Saint-Saens's concerto in G-minor and Schumann's "Etudes Symphoniques." Mr. Burmelster, fermerly of Baltimore, played Beethoven's E-flat concerto and Liszt's in A-major. He also pro duced a "Symphonic Fantasia" for orchestra, which is to be repeated at a concert of the Berlin Philharmonie Society.

In the current number of "The Music Review," published in Chicago, Mr. Philip Hale, of Boston, writes down his impressions of the planoforte score of Verdi's "Falstaff." His summing up is worthy of reproduc-Mr. Hale says:

tion. Mr. Hale says:

"This fact is clearly revealed by even a superficial examination: That, aithough 'Falstaff' was written in a nervous time, during the last year of a dying century, the music of Verdi is sane, sincere and eminently healthy. It is free from affectation or morbidness of every kind. The laugh is hearty, and there is no trace of the 'sardonicus risus.' The levemaking is not akin to the amorous regret of old age, it is full of the dreamy tenderness and blushing hope of youth. In the expression of the comedy verdi made full use of the modern means, but the spirit in which he used them was the serene spirit that accepts and rejects, and, above all, knows that the art of arts is simplicity. Verdi has grown constantly during the fifty years or more of composition. An old man, he now combines the knowledge and strength of vigorous manhood with the aspirations, the longings, the enthusiasm, of glowing Italian youth."

The following piece of information comes from Utica and is given in the words of the sender: Easter Tuesday evening introduced to the musical and cultivated citizens of Utica their new Choral Union in a delightful programme of part sougs, supple mented by equally attractive solo selections from the popular young contracto, Miss Chara Aline Jewell; Miss Geraldine Morgan, our charming violinist, and Mr. Purche Rollinson, another New-York artist, whose fine barytone voice and finished style are fast maling him famous. Mr. Victor Harris, as director of the society, accompanist of the soloists and comser of the song-gem of the evening-"A Madrigal," hich was admirably delivered by Mr. Robinson, won brilliant triumph. Incomparable as an accompanist of his chorus, subtle discernment of both music and singers' possibilities, and unflagging energy in developing both. The Utica Choral Union is a pronounced success under his management.

BASSADOR BAYARD IN WILMINGTON. Wilmington, Del., April 9.-President Cleveland Secretary Gresham and Senator White spent a quiet day at Mr. Bayard's home, Delamore Place, and, save for a stroll this morning around the grounds surrounding the comfortable old homestead, they remained indoors until 3:05 o'clock this afternoon. At that hour they finished their luncheon, and the family carry-all or drag was brought to the front door. Mr. Bayard and Secretary Gresham took the driver's seat, and the former held the reins over the two chestnut bays with docked tails. President Cleveland and Senator White sat on the seats behind and faced each other. These seats run length-wise of the carriage, which can accommodate six in addition to those on the driver's seat. Mr. Bayard at once touched the horses with the whip, and the party started in a westerly direction for a drive Several of the men who had been waiting around the house to catch a glimpse of the party lifted their hats, and the salute was returned by the President.

As the party left the house Mr. Bayard was again asked whether there was any significance attached to the visit. He replied that there was not, and that the gentlemen had merely come for a day's rest, which they were getting. The drive extended along the romantic Brandywine and back through the city. It lasted just one hour and a and at 6 o'clock the party took dinner. This ing was quietly spent in Mr. Bayard's cosey little library. BISHOP O'FARRELL AT SWEDESBORO.

Swedesboro, N. J., April 9.-The Catholic church in this place was crowded at the last mass this morning by the members of the congregation and by many who are not Catholics. The little church never before held so many people at one time. The gathering this morning was in anticipation of the statement which it was known Bishop O'Farrell was to make. The people have heard several letters from the Bishop rend, relative to the trouble between the Fathers Treacy and the church, but this was the first time the Bishop The St. Andrew's Society of the State of New-York was to speak. The Bishop was accompanied to-day or ing to St. John. He chose the 22d verse. In the course of his sermon the Bishop said that William Trency was no longer a priest. To those who fol-lowed Father Treacy the Bishop promised a pardon if they would return to the fold. Those who did not return at once would in the future be dealed all sacraments of the church. The Hishop also reviewed the Burlington troubles. He spoke of the threats made against his life and that of Vicar-General McFaul by P. A. Treacy, the deposed priest of that place. Will-P. A. Treacy, the deposed priest of that place. Will-lam Treacy, the priest at this place, esponsed the cause of his brother. Both brothers denied that the powers of the Bishop and of Mgr. Satolil are final. The nishop gave his benediction and promised to visit the church again when the troubles were over. Father William Treacy said mass in the house of Edward Monahan this morning. There were only three persons present. The deposed priest still oc-cupies the rectory and keeps the doors locked.

GREEK CATHOLICS HAVE AN EASTER SERVICE. Chicago, April 9.-For the first time in Chicago the full Easter service of the Greek Catholic Orthodox Church was celebrated this morning, beginning at midnight. It was unique, solemn and impressive. The march around the house by the priest and attendants, all carrying lighted candles, symbolized the search of the apostles for Christ around his open tomb. The ceremonies will be continued until the appearance of the morning star, when all will partake of food blessed by the priest, signifying the close of Lent.

HONORING WILLIAM H. CRANE.

AMERICAN DRAMATISTS GIVE A SUPPER FOR

HIM-HIS VIEWS ABOUT PLAYWRIGHTS. The Society of American Playwrights honored Willam II. Crane, the actor-manager, late on Saturday night with a supper at the Arena, in appreciation of what he has done in furthering the interests of the native dramatists. It was past midnight when the authors took their places around the long table, and for fully four hours they gave themselves up to saying pleasant things about the guest of the evening, or the morning, rather, and discussing the question: " are managers ompetent to judge of plays?" The question was warmiy debated, but no conclusion that was not known before was reached. When the cigars were lighted Mr. Crane was introduced, amid hearty applause.

"Gentlemen," began the comedian, "It is hardly no cessary to say that I am glad to be here on this pleasant occasion-very glad to accept your hospitality, nd most grateful for the most cordial reception which you have greeted me. But, having said this, I feel that I should be much better off if I should get right down and say no more. Those of you who write plays, and who read the criticisms in the papers the day after a new play is produced-and I Imagin all of you do that-may have noticed that certain critics have said of some of the plays which I have presented that it was a good thing for the author that Crane had produced their play, that Crane did all the work, if it hadn't been for Crane, etc., etc., etc. Now this is all very pleasant reading for Crane To a certain extent we all, especially in your pro now, gentlemen, you have your revenge, for through your kindness you have placed Crane in a most embarrassing position, for now you have Crane before you without any playwright to furnish material. Here I am thrown absolutely upon my own resources, compelled to use my own language, no 'fat' lines to speak, no strong situation to work upon, and none, except a very awkward one, to help me out. I am afraid if the critics were here now they would say it would take more than Crane to save this piece. But the gentlemen of the press have been most gen-crous to me, and I appreciate their kindness fully.

"But, gentlemen, you know and I know how much I really owe to the American playwright. If it were not for him I could not have received any commenda tion from the critics, to whom is due the sole credit for originating the strong situations, the funny com plications and the bright sayings, and have given me the opportunities to please both the public and the critics with my work, and I have not nor shall I ever belongs to him or her. During the last three years I have shown my faith in the American drama by pro-American authors. Though opinions may very properly differ as to the merits of these plays, relatively speaking, or as to the ability with which I have inness with which I have endeavored to place these plays adequately before the public. I still believe in a great future for the American drama, not that we are not living, so to speak, in that future now, for we are producing here to-day as many good and fairly good plays as any other country where the theatre is established. We cannot expect to reach perfection at once, but we are steadily progressing toward that point, and it is only a question of time when we shall get there or thereabouts. As play after play is produced, a strong improvement, both in originality of ideas and dramatio construction and also in the brightness of the dialogue, is noted, so that I say again the future of the American drama is bright with hope, and to realize that future as specially as possible should be at present the exclusive care of the author, the actor and the manager. Now, gentlemen, having worked myself out of the awkward situation in which I found myself placed as well as I could under the circumstances, I trust when I say I thank you all sincerely that you only a question of time when we shall get there or thereabouts. As play after play is produced, a strong improvement, both in originality of ideas and dramatic construction and also in the brightness of the dialogue, is noted, so that I say again the future of the American drama is bright with hope, and to realize that future as specurity as possible should be at present the exclusive care of the author, the actor and the manager. Now, gentlemen, having worked myself out of the newward situation in which I found myself placed as well as I could under the circumstances, I trust when I say I thank you all sincerely that you will pardon the horrible conventionality of my exit."

The comedian was frequently interrupted with laughter and was warmly applauded at the end. The question of the night was then in order, and Augustus Pitou tried to show that managers were fully capable of judging of the merits of plays. Among those who listened or took part in the discussion were Charles learnard. Maurice Barrymore, Thomas Freat, Clay Greene, Paul Potter, Nelson Wheatcroft, George Backns and Lorrimer Stoddard.

MAYOR GILROY'S OPPOSITION TO IT.

TAMMANY MAY NOT BE ABLE TO PREVENT THE SUCCESS OF THE SCHEME, HOWEVER,

Tammany Hall proposes to defeat the scheme of R. T. Wilson & Co., for building the rapid transit underground railroad. It has been a notorious fact for a dong time that the leaders of Tammany were opposed to any scheme that might prevent the Manhattan Railway Company from carrying out its plans for invading the principal thoroughfares of New-York with its ugly iron structure. This position was sgain clearly shown yesterday by men high in the councils of Tammany. The scheme presented to the Rapid Transit Commission on Saturday by R. T. Wilsoff cannot be perfected without special legislation, for the Rapid Transit Commission has not the power to adopt the scheme and carry it out, although the indorsement of it by the Commission might be significant and have great weight under ordinary conditions. But Tammany Hall with its control of the Legislature seems to be in a position to prevent Mr. Wilson's scheme from being carried out.

many Hall who were seen by reporters yesterday spoke most discouragingly of Mr. Wilson's scheme Mayor Gilroy has, on several occasions, said that he was opposed to the use of the city's money for building the underground road. Yesterday he that he was opposed to loaning the city's credit for assisting in carrying out Mr. Wilson's scheme. It will be remembered, however, that when a delegation of labor leaders called on the Mayor at his ouse a week ago resterday he said that he was not opposed to submitting the question of the construction of the underground road by the city to the people. He said positively that he would not oppose any scheme for submitting the question to the people, but he would vote against it and ask others to do the same. When seen by a reporter yesterday, the Mayor said: "I do not think the city should go into any such enterprise with the public money. In my opinion it would be detrimental to the public interest and would tend to paralyze private enterprise. Private capital will always go into any feasible money into an enterprise which is so much an ex-periment of doubtful character that capitalists will not undertake to do the whole thing.

"I do not think the underground road planned by the Rapid Transit Commission could be built for less than $100,000,000. Now, if the city is to be asked try to rob the author of one particle of credit which to put up 70 per cent of this it would have to raise $70,000,000, and that would come perilously near to the constitutional limitation of the city's indebted-

SET ON FIRE BY DRUNKEN COMPANIONS.

In all probability Christopher C. Smith has forever escaped the playful ruffianism of his companions. Smith is lifty-two years old, and his easy-going temperament has always made him the built for the jokes of those around him. Late on Saturday night, in company with John Riley and Patrick Ford, who, like himself, are stablemen, he entered McGarrel's liquor store, in Tenth-ave., between Sixty-third and Sixtyfourth sts. Drinks were served and then "Andy" McDonald, the bartender, threw some alcohol over him. Then one merciless scoundrel in the crowd, heedless of results, threw a lighted match on his clothes. Instantly the flames leaped up, and Smith was enveloped in fire. The crowd closed around him, dragged oif his clothes, and put out the flame.

LECTURES ON THE ECUMENICAL COUNCILS.

The Rev. R. M. Benson yesterday afternoon delivered the introductory address in a series of lectures to take pisce in st. Thomas's Protestant Episcopal Church, Fifth-ave. and Fifty third-st. The general Councils," and they are to be given by prominent theologians. They are given under the auspices of the church club.

The Rev. Mr. Benson, student of Christ Church. Oxford, is a member of that devoted band of workers, the Cowley Brotherhood, of Oxford, England. This order, officially known as the Society of St. John the Evangelist, was founded in 1865 as a society of mission preachers, with Father Benson as its Superior, a position he held until 1890, when he resigned. The work of the brotherhood in this country has been confined to the Church of the Advent, in Boston: St. Augustine's, a church for colored people, in the same city, and St. Clement's, in Philadelphia. Pathers Osboune, Hall and Maturin have often been heard at Trinity and other churches in this city and were particularly notable for the spirituality and carnestness in their sermons. Besides the work in this country missions have been established at Bombay this country missions have been escaulated in the country missions have been escaulated in finding and at Cape Town. South Africa; Father Benson spending a year in India about 1891. Among his published works are "The Life Beyond the Grave," "An Exposition of St. Paul's Episile to the Romans," "Spiritual Readings for Every Day," and "The Final Passover."

MISS MITCHELL TREADS THE GROUND AGAIN. Chicago, April 9.-Miss Bessle Mitchell, who has travelled around the country in three weeks, set her foot upon ground again this afternoon. She left the city on a wager that she could travel 10,000 miles without leaving the railroad car, and she succeeded in accomplishing the feat. The route took Miss Mitchell to Portland, thence south into Mexico, back to St. Louis and finally to Boston. She arrived here at 4:30 this afternoon, eighteen hours aread of time. She was weary of riding, but had enjoyed the adventure thoroughly. In several towns she was visited by curious women, but the trip was without special incident. Miss Mitch it a ye she will not write a book.

THE ALLEGED ASSASSIN OF CLAYTON.

Little Rock, April 9 .- Sheriff B. G. White, with W. H. Burkhart, the principal witness in the Clayton Werner were closeted with Colonel Clayton and Henry

A. Copper, chairman of the Republican State Central

Week. McCooper, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, all the afternoon. What passed between them all refuse to disclose. Colonel Clayton says that he does not believe the story that Burkhart tells is altogether false. Hickey will attempt to prove an alibi, asserting that he was in Colorado at the time of the murder. The preliminary examination is set for Wednesday at Morrellton. A remarkable feature in the present status of the case is that the sheriff who arrested Hickey and the lawyer, Charles Reed, who is to defend him, were both charged with the theft of the ballot-box at Plummerville, out of the investigation of which resulted the murder, and that Offiver T. Bentley, the Justice who will try him, was the man charged with the murder.

OBITUARY.

A. G. MAGRATH. Charleston, April 9 (Special).-Ex-Governor A. G. Magrath died here at 2:30 p. m. to-day. born in Charleston, February 8, 1813. He was of Irish descent, his father having been engaged in the Irish rebellion of 1798, for which he was arrested, but, escaping, fled to this country, and, having engaged in business as a merchant, died at an advanced age in this city. The early education of young Magrath was received at Bishop England's school, where he remuined until 1827, when he entered the South Carolina College, and was graduated thence with high honors in 1831, the Rev. James H. Thornwell, the distinguished Presbyterian divine, being one of his classmates. He studied law under the late James L. Petigra, and in 1832 entered the law school at he sided with that portion of the Democratic party In the State which supported Zachary Taylor. In 1856 he was elected a delegate to represent the State at large in the Democratic Convention at Cincinnation. Now reincarnation has passed already through four races—the fourth round of the fifth race. There are yet to be two races; and when we shall have reached all knowledge and know all things we shall have reached all knowledge and know all things we shall have reached all knowledge and know all things we shall have reached all knowledge and know all things we shall have reached all knowledge and know all things we shall have reached all knowledge and know all things we shall have reached all knowledge and know all things we shall have reached all knowledge and know all things we shall have reached all continued on the Bench until 1800, sending list of resurrection; not the raising of the deed body yeur against this I put the dectrine of regeneration and therefore the meeting of the Convention. It is a stated fool. This is annihilation.

Over against this I put the doctrine of regeneration and therefore the meeting of the Convention. It is a stated fool. This is annihilation.

Over against this I put the doctrine of regeneration and therefore the meeting of the Convention. It is the ground, but the ground, but the ground, but the ground, but the ground out of the old; I put the preserved personality in an immertal, and glorious, and divine body; over against the doctrine of divine manhood, visible signs of an invisible God, having all knowledge and all power, in the State which supported Zachary Taylor. President he wrote: "Should that conflict arise I of an invisible God, having all knowledge and all power, would not hesitate in my conduct. I shall devote my best energies to sustain the State of South Carin this crisis. The execution of my purpose in this respect might be productive of some embarrassment to you if you were not aware of it until the emergency arose. In anticipation, therefore, of that occasion I resign now into your hands as Judge of the United States for the State of South Carolina."

The resignation of Judge Magrath was then and ever will be regarded as prominent among those events which determined the relation of the State to the Government of the United States, and was the first overt act and irrevocable step to its secession from the Union. Immediately after his resignation he was elected by a large majority at the head of the ticket as delegate to the convention which passed the Ordinance of Secession, and while still a ber of that body was selected by Governor Pickens as a leading member of his Cabinet.

As soon as the Confederate Government was established he was appointed one of the Judges of the the office until November, 1864, when at the meeting of the Legislature of that year he was elected ling of the Legislature of that year he was elected Governor of Senth Carolina. He was inaugurated on December 20, 1864.

During his tenure of the Governorship the State passed through a period of the greatest and most fearful depression it has ever experienced. The treasury bankrupt, the State invaded, the people impovershed and discouraged, helpless in the present, hopeless in the future. Prior to Sherman's occupation of Columbia all the State archives possible were removed and the remainder destroyed. Governor Magrath, leaving the capital the same morning that it was occupied by the Federal troops, returned to it to find the Garden City a heap of smouldering ruins.

At the fall of the Confederacy in April, 1865, he was arrested by order of the Government of the United States and confined at Fort Pulaski. The State Convention which met in September, 1865, under the direction of President Johnson, made a strong appeal to the President for his release, but it was not until the latter end of December of that year that he was liberated on his parole. Then he returned to Charleston, where he resumed the practise of law, and soon re-established himself in a successful and lucrative practice.

STEPHEN MICHOLS.

HE SAYS THEOSOPHY IS PANTHEISM.

AN OPINION ON THE "WISDO & RELIGION" BE A BAPTIST PREACHER.

Baptist Church, Boulevard and Feventy-ninth-sh, spoke to a large audience last evening on the subject "Theosophy vs. Christianity," in substance follows:

I have selected as a typical characteristic text, Matthew xxiv, 24: "And there shall arise false Christs and false prophets, who shall show great signs and wonders, insomuch that if it were possible, they should deceive
the very elect: but behold I have told ve before, wherefore, if they shall say unto you, behold he is in the desert, go not forth; he is in the secret chamber, believe it not."

Man in the perplexities of life feels more and more every day the need of something diviner and stronger within than his natural self, and as he approaches death he cries out for light. Theosophy proposes to meet these L. Petigra, and in 1832 entered the law school at Harvard University, graduating thence under the direction of Judge Story.

Admitted to the Bar in 1835, he at once began the practice of his profession in Charleston, under the most favorable auspices. He was elected to the State Legislature as a member from Charleston in 1840, and re-elected in 1842. In 1850, when separate state action was urged by a large party in the State, he was constitution as a seven-fold being. He consists of a spirit, three souls, a live principle and two bodies. The three souls are the spiritual soul, the human soul and the souls are the spiritual soul, the human soul and the care of God, and the relation which He sustains to man 1840, and re-elected in 1842. In 1850, when separate as a seven-fold being. He consists of a spirit, three souls, a live principle and two bodies. The three souls are the spiritual soul, the human soul and the care of God, and the relation which He sustains to man 1840, and re-elected in 1842. In 1850, when separate as a seven-fold being. He consists of a spirit, three souls are the spiritual soul, the human soul and the care of God, and the relation which He sustains to man 1840, and re-elected in 1842. In 1850, when separate as a seven-fold being the consists of a spirit, three souls are the spiritual soul, the human soul and the cries out for light. Theosophy proposes to meet these recessions out for light. Theosophy proposes to meet these recess out for light. Theosophy proposes to meet these recess out for light. Theosophy proposes to meet these recess out for light. Theosophy proposes to meet these recess out for light. Theosophy proposes to meet these recess out for light. Theosophy proposes to meet these recess out for light. Theosophy proposes to meet these souls are the constitution and the character of God, and the relation which He sustains of God, and the relation which He sustains to the spiritual section of God. This is particular the constitution and the character of God, and the relation which he was conspicuous among those who opposed and defeated it. In the convention called for the consideration of that question he was elected and sat as a member from Charleston. In the discussion of the exciting political questions of the day he contributed it. exciting political questions of the day he contributed many articles to the press in opposition to squatter sovereignfy in the Territories, and the rights of the alaye-holding States in newly-acquired territory of the United States.

In the Presidential contest between Taylor and Cass which is that according to what a man soweth he shall reap. A man may come back as woman, a woman may of an invisible God, having all knowledge and all power, and escending through countless cycles to endless life and light and joy, end gracious knowledge one of another, so that I shail be I, and then shall be thou. Theosophy asks us to give up this book that gives us the only true gnowledge of God, and then asks us to go out into the night beyond the rates of death and consoles us with some catallatic sign, and in the moment of our cry for light is will plunge us into endless annihilation.
